

Workshop Feedback

I went to a workshop to help with preparing myself for exams and it somewhat satisfied my needs. Most of the information that were presented were already things I learned before hands however it was a good reminder for me. It was interesting to know what resources were available to me and it was useful to know that there were good templates that were offered by the Student Success Center to help me organize my studies and organize my time. Although, a lot of the information that were presented things that were mentioned in our class and the only thing new that I learned was how to adapt myself depending on the type of exams I will have. Some other tricks that I learned and will try to implement was to immediately establish a plan to prepare for my finals right after my midterms. I haven't been prepping myself adequately for my midterms and would like to chance that to do better for my finals. I would also like to be able to further break down my study times and try to avoid procrastinate when an assignment or project is made available. Currently, I haven't been able to properly implement the strategies I wanted to for my midterms, however once midterm season is over, I want to properly implement what I've learned.
